

Question of Intent is Brought Up in Discussing the Packey-Mike Battle

BOUT SHOULD BE LIVELY IF BOTH MEN SHOW FIGHT

Fans Are Looking for Stiff Battle When Packey and Mike Meet—Some Have Their Doubts.

By Frank C. Menke.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—There is considerable speculation as to just what kind of an affair this Packey-Mike battle will be. Some are predicting a stiff fight, while others are predicting a "sell-out" fight.

There are a few of the gentle readers of pugilistic notes who are confident that it's going to be something of a grudge fight, and, therefore, a hammer and tonic affair from beginning to end.

"Packey's sore on Mike and Mike is just awfully puffed at Packey," say the faction. "They've been at swords point for years and both have been keen to settle the grudge. This is the first—and probably the last—chance for each and for's going to fly."

But, on the other hand, there's the big talk of fight fans who think the affair will be nothing more than a dancing contest. Boxing means work. Why should Packey and Mike work when they will get paid whether they work or not? That's the way some folks argue.

Packey hasn't been doing any active ring work for nearly two years. That's a long time to be out of the fight game. Packey may come back faster and stronger than ever—and he may not. He may put up a whirling exhibition and he may decide to take things easy and simply use his master defense to block the lefts of the "St. Paul Ghost."

Mike is in shape, and when Mike wants to extend himself he's a wonder. But Mike, in the opinion of the experts, isn't as good as he was a year ago. He shows slight signs of slipping—of bowing to the inevitable will of age.

Nevertheless, the bout ought to be a humdinger if both men really extend themselves. But will they?

$9.75 a second for Packey.

Some of our best citizens, after reading about Mike and Packey's guarantee wonder why their parents didn't raise 'em to be prize fighters. Packey gets $17,500 for 30 minutes of actual boxing, when, when he's down, shows he will get $9.75 per second. Mike's guarantee is $15,000, which nets him something over $8 per second. Those incomes listen very much like that which John D. Rockefeller's press agent tells about.

Johnny Evers vs. Lee Magee.

Why not a bout between Johnny Evers and Lee Magee, the best light weight battlers that ever donned a uniform? That would be a scrap worth while—one that would satisfy the fighting lust of even the most blood thirsty citizens.

Evers today ranks as the best little battler in the National League. He has beaten up everybody worth while. His courage is marvelous. Big or little player, umpire or manager—he tackles 'em all. He knows not the meaning of the word fear and he'll fight until torn loose from his enemy.

Magee is just as pugnacious. He's a small chap, but he'll fight almost without provocation. He tackled the biggest as well as the smallest. He'll pick a quarrel with an umpire, a spectator, a manager or player without fear as to the outcome.

Oh, by all means let us have an Evers-Magee bout—and to the finish.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 11.—A new world's record being made in the 2:03 pace at the Grand Circuit races Tuesday, while a new mark was set in the 2:08 trotting stake, was the feature. ## RICHARDS OF ILLINOIS A. C. WINS DECATHLON

Student of Cornell Beats Nearest Competitor by Over Four Hundred Points.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 11.—Alva Richards of the Illinois A. C., student at Cornell university and winner of the high jump in the last Olympic games held at Stockholm in 1912, won the decathlon of the Amateur Athletic union at the exposition stadium Tuesday. Thus did Richards prove himself the best of a bunch of men who have had to conquer the intricacies of 10 different kinds of athletic endeavor.

Richards scored 6858.81 points, which was just about 400 better than his nearest competitor, a Chicago athlete named Brundage. Chester Fee of the Multnomah club of Portland, Oregon, and H. Goeltz of the Chicago A. A., were close up to Brundage.

In the 110-metres high hurdle race the times varied from 15 1/5 seconds to 22 4/5 seconds. In the discus throw Brundage threw the saucer 126 feet, 7 1/2 inches, while Tyler could only send it out 71 feet, 7 1/2 inches. Tyler was also the tailender in the 1,500-metre race which wound up the proceedings, finishing 400 yards behind the leader in this event. In the pole vault Tyler sent his "goat," his vault being 7 feet, 8 1/2 inches, while Fee cleared 12 feet.

In the pole vault Fee was first, Richards second and Goeltz third. Fee also won the javelin throw with Lincoln second and Thompson third. Goeltz and O'Connor were the winners in the two heats of the 1,500 metres race and Brundage won the discus with a throw of 126 feet, 7 1/2 inches. The hurdle race was contested in two heats, Jacobs, Fee and Goeltz each being timed in 16 1/5 seconds.

STAR FIGHTERS TO FORM AN ALLEGIANCE

Men and Managers Propose an Association to Buck the Fight Promoters.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Most of the star fighters in America are forming a combine to fight the allegiance of promoters that is planned by Tom Andrews, the Milwaukee club manager. There was a meeting of fight managers in New York city, and at that session plans were formed for a gigantic protection movement, such as has never been known in history of the fighting game.

As the prelude of the constitution of the new association reads, it is organized merely to protect the fighters. As a matter of fact it is an organization to protect the managers.

Here are the names of the fighters, with their managers:

Freddie Welsh, manager Harry Pollock.

Charley White, manager Nate Lewis.

Sam McVey and Colin Bell, manager Al Reich, manager Max Blumenthal.

Johnny Kilbane, manager Jimmy Dunn.

Managers of other headlines of the fighting game are in the list and were at the meeting or were reported by proxies.

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—Dr. R. P. Elmer of Wayne, Pa., present national archery champion, had the high score at the end of the first day's shooting here in the 37th annual tournament. His score was 1,075 points out of 1,1
